

I live on Prosser Crescent with my dog, and we actively avoid walking passed 24 Prosser, due to the fear of their large dogs. We used to walk the trail next to their house until a couple instances in which the dogs were in the backyard and were barking and jumping at the fence, looking as though they could jump right over it. My dog and I cross the street to avoid walking directly passed the front of their house as well, as we don't know if the dogs are inside or in their yard and we are hoping to avoid any potential conflict with them.
